

Explore Legal London

The American Inns of Court invites your Inn to consider hosting a small group of judges and lawyers to explore legal London. Discover the English Inns of Court that lie at the center of London and enjoy learning of their colorful and vibrant traditions, and historical associations. For many centuries they have been central to the training and professional lives of England's barristers. While the four Inns of Court are similar in their history and fundamentals, they each offer their own unique architecture design, landscape and dining halls. Several Inns over the years have worked with the national office and a recommended travel agent to create a week-long experience to explore legal London when the English Inns of Court are open between the months of October and July. With the help of the travel agent, Inns are able to create an itinerary that reflects their interests and timing. Traveling to London provides Inn members the opportunity to gain closer insight into the workings of the English Inns of Court and the English legal system, as well as time to explore other remarkable opportunities available in the heart of London.
